

In the Sweet Pie and Pie

April

McAllister, 33, is a wife and mother. Every day she does laundry, cleans her house, and gets her children off to school. A woman just like any other, you might think. But April has breast cancer and is currently undergoing chemotherapy and radiation treatments to fight the disease. Living in a small town in Arkansas, you might think there are few services available for her. That proved different when her entire town stepped in and threw a benefit in April's honor. Deemed simply "Pie Auction and Bean Supper

SUPPORTIVE FAMILY:
April, her husband Kevin, and their three children.

When April McAllister was diagnosed with breast cancer, her small town of Cedarville, Arkansas rallied around her and came up with one of the most unique benefits we have ever seen.

Benefit," all proceeds from the late summer event are going to April directly. Held at the Old Rock School Building in Cedarville, Arkansas, the benefit offered food and a family atmosphere, as well as home interior items for sale.

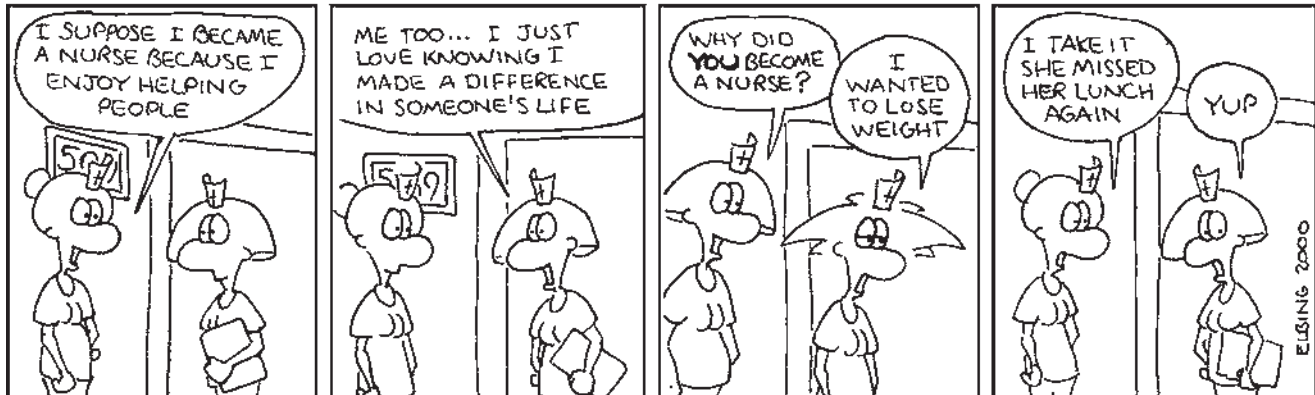

Have you heard of a unique fundraiser that you would like to share? Let us know.

editorials@beyondoncology.com

Nurstoons

by Carl Elbing

www.nurstoons.com